Marc Waltrich becomes new division manager at Energiequelle

As part of an internal restructuring process the former Nordex vice president will head the projects division in cooperation with Gregor Weber.

Kallinchen, August 2018. With an internal restructuring process the Energiequelle GmbH is preparing itself for future opportunities and challenges. Already in July the company organized info-events in the headquarters in Kallinchen and Bremen to inform all employees about the restructuring process.

Division projects with a dual leadership

The most crucial restructuring has been implemented in the projects division. The formerly separated areas for national and international activities have been united. Gregor Weber, who has been responsible for Energiequelle's international business activities, is now part of a new dual leadership of the projects division. In this role he is responsible for 65 employees located in Bremen, Hannover, Erfurt, Finland and France.

His counterpart, located in Kallinchen, is Marc Waltrich. He has joined the company on 15th of August 2018. Before joining Energiequelle, he has been working in several leading positions in the international project management of Nordex - among others in the implementation and direction of the global project coordination, the "Continuous Improvement" and the digitalization. He has a lot of experience and a very good insight of wind energy industry. His team consists of almost 50 employees located in Kallinchen, Dresden and Rostock. One of his first tasks will be the implementation of an international project team in Kallinchen and the exploitation of new markets for Energiequelle. "The market environment for the wind industry and all renewable energies is currently facing severe changes. It is necessary to adjust accordingly. I am looking forward to facing these challenges within a sustainable and future orientated company like Energiequelle", says Marc Waltrich when questioned about his motivation for an occupational change.

Innovations in the new business development division

Réne Just, who has been responsible for Energiequelle's German projects, is taking over the position as head of the division new business development from Energiequelle managing director Michael Raschemann. This division is focusing on topics such as energy storage, sector coupling and power supply solutions of the future.

Reasons for restructuring

Bundling of competences, abolishing of division boundaries and a stronger focus on international markets have been the main reasons for the restructuring. “We want to support each other, no matter if a project is developed in Brandenburg or Pakistan. Furthermore, all employees should have the chance to widen their horizon and to think internationally”, says the company management. In this process it has been very important for us to maintain existing and to create even new jobs. A first step has been made with Marc Waltrich.
